Cocoanut Oil Makes
A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulled cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless, is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulled cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Safe Home Treatment
for Objectionable Hairs

(Boudoir Secrets)

The electric needle is not required for the removal of hair or fuzz, for with the use of plain delatone the most stubborn growth can be quickly banished. A paste is made with water and a little of the powder, then spread over the hairy surface. In about 2 minutes it is rubbed off and the skin washed. This simple treatment not only removes the hair, but leaves the skin free from blemishes. Be sure you get genuine delatone.

Russian Ball Brilliant and Picturesque Event—Many Dinners Given Before It—Mrs. Marshall Holds Informal Reception—Activities of the Diplomats and Official Society

By JEAN ELIOT.

RAY, brilliant, colorful, picturesque, gorgeous, spectacular—the scene at Wardman Park Inn last evening when the Russian Ball was under way beggared description. The world, official, diplomatic, and resident, and his wife, not to mention his sisters and his cousins and his aunts, were present—only the members of the present Russian embassy staff being conspicuous by their absence.

It was whispered through the throng that officials of the State Department had been "tipped off" not to attend, lest their presence lend official status to the ball and Russia's diplomatic representatives be given greater cause to feel that they had been slighted in being left out of an entertainment arranged by a little group of women, at present without any official connections, who had all been more or less closely affiliated with the old imperial regime in Russia. I can't vouch for the truth of this, nor even for the fact that none of the State Department people were present, but I didn't see any of them.

However, there was no lack of official representation by such shining lights as Mme. de Riano, wife of the Spanish Ambassador, the Minister of Sweden and Mme. Ekengren, the Minister of Salvador and Mme. Zaldívar, the Charge d'Affaires of Great Britain and Mrs. Colville Barclay, General Collardet, military attaché of the French embassy, and Mme. Collardet, Mr. Constantinoff, of the Greek legation; J. E. Lefevre, charge d'affaires of Panama, and Miss Mamona Lefevre, and many others.

Accompany Mrs. Walsh

The Vice President and Mrs. Marshall, who dined at home, joined Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh's party in time to accompany them to the ball. On their arrival the party was escorted to Mrs. Walsh's box, the Vice President on the arm of George Bakmeteff, formerly Russian ambassador to the United States, and Mrs. Marshall, with Lieut. Arthur Bradley Campbell, chairman of the floor committee. Immediately afterward the company stood at attention while "The Star Spangled Banner" was played.

Mrs. Marshall wore a gown of gold colored brocade combined with silver lace and carried a huge sheaf of American roses presented to her by the committee. Others in Mrs. Walsh's party were Franklin M. Veagh, formerly Secretary of the Treasury, and Mr. and Mrs. Effingham Lawrence Townsend.

Despite the enormous size of Wardman Park Inn, the ball room is not very large, and the jam almost suggested the Washington street cars. Indeed, until after supper, general dancing was impossible, or, at least, improbable. However, the ball was for charity—for the benefit of the American Refuge of Petrograd, where destitute children from the invaded regions of Russia are cared for.

This was cause rather for congratulation than for censure. Moreover, there was no one in the throng, but felt he got his money's worth—and more.

Floor Was Fine.
Not only was supper served, a delicious course supper comfortably served at small tables, but the floor was good, the music excellent, the company a brilliant one, with the kakoschniks—the Russian national head-dresses—and the other gorgeous and barbaric head-dresses worn by many of the guests to give color and picturesque quality to the scene. Then, by way of an "extra added attraction" there was exhibition dancing by Mme. Olga Valery Lopokova, a great Russian danseuse who had never before appeared in public in this country, and three of the daintiest, fresh cut, and most talented of the pupils of Chailoff's school of ballet, who were things whose performance was an inspiration.

Mme. George Bakmeteff, Mrs. George T. Mayne, wife of the former American ambassador to Russia and first president of the American Refuge; Mrs. H. Fessenden McGee, who succeeded Mrs. Mayne as head of the organization; Mrs. James McDonald, and Mrs. Edward B. Leary were the members of the committee which organized the ball. And with the exception of Mrs. McLean, who is ill, they stood in line to receive the guests. Mrs. Bakmeteff wore a gown of white silver brocade with a wonderful kakoschnik of emeralds and diamonds and ornaments of the same magnificent stones. Parenthetically, Mme. Bakmeteff is said to own the handsomest emeralds in the world, save those belonging to the ill-fated house of Romanoff.

Russian "Winter Costume."
Mrs. Mayne wore a Russian "winter costume" of white brocade, with a jacket of dark brocade and an elaborate trimming of brown fur. Her head-dress was studded with pearls, strands of which hung over her forehead and ears, and a lovely point lace veil fell from the back of her kakoschnik. She also wore pearl and diamond ornaments. Mrs. Meserve wore a shell pink gown, with a head-dress of diamonds, emeralds, and pearls set off by a veil of delicate gold lace; and Mrs. James McDonald, who was in black velvet, wore an equally lovely jeweled kakoschnik.

Some of the guests wore complete Russian peasant costume, among them Mrs. Arthur Graham Glasgow and Miss Alys Downing. Mrs. George Barnett looked very lovely in a very "brides" white gown, with a head-dress of pearls and a voluminous tulle veil. With her gown of white and gold brocade, Miss Louise Delano wore a great blue kakoschnik, embroidered in golden peacocks, which was both picturesque and becoming. Her cousin, Mrs. Charles Fellowes-Gordon, wearing her wedding gown of white and silver brocade, with a head-dress of silver and white tulle, presented another amazingly lovely picture. Lieutenant Fellowes-Gordon was at her elbow all evening.

Wear Fancy Head-dress.
Others who wore fancy head-dress with charming effect were Mrs. Colville Barclay, Mrs. Sherman Miles, Princess Ghika, Miss Antoinette Graves, a lovely girl in a white gown and a blue kakoschnik and veil; Miss Carolyn Nash, Mrs. Howard Home, Miss Elizabeth Grinnell, Miss Mary Helen, Miss Minna Blair, Miss Eleanor Johnston, Miss Joan Ohi and Miss

MRS. ATLEE POMERENE,
Wife of Senator Pomerene, who will receive this afternoon.

Ruth Hitchcock. The Misses Patten, Mrs. Charles Boughton Wood, Mrs. Victor Kaufmann, Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes, Jr., and many others also wore kakoschniks.

Mme. Riano was a guest in the box with Senator and Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry; and her sister, Mrs. Chandler Anderson; and with Mr. and Mrs. George Howard, Mrs. E. H. G. Slater, and Mrs. Akel Wickfield. The Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Lane were guests of William Phelps Emory, who also had with him Mrs. George Ehle and Colonel Buenaville. Mr. and Mrs. Edison Bradley had with them Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Graham Glasgow and Colonel Cooke; Mrs. William A. Slater had her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Slater, with her; Mrs. Kipke; Mrs. George Bakmeteff entertained in their box the charge d'affaires of Great Britain and Mrs. Colville Barclay and Madam Simon.

Mrs. Noble's Guests.
Mrs. William Belden Noble had with her the Military Attaché of the French Embassy and Mme. Collardet, Captain Grainger, Mrs. Sherman Miles and Miss Margaret Blagden, of New York. Mrs. Walter Denegre and Mrs. E. H. G. Slater had a box together. Mrs. Charles S. Bromwell and Mrs. Frank C. Letts had a box together, and their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dillingham, of Honolulu, Captain Snagge and Mr. Sargeant, of the British embassy.

Mrs. Charles Boughton Wood had as her guests Mrs. Frederick L. Chapin and her daughter, Mrs. Kipke; Mrs. Alfred Hawes, Miss Antoinette Graves, and Lieut. Clarence Seymour, of Hartford, Conn. Major William Eric Fowler entertained in his box Congressmen Walter Chandler, Commander and Mrs. Mayo, Mrs. James Carroll Fraser, Mrs. Bristol, Miss Mary Gwynn, Miss Marguerite Simonds, Major Bruce Cotton, of Baltimore, and Charles Richardson.

Mr. Richard Townsend was the guest of Mrs. John Rodgers and Mme. Hauge, who had a box together. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Penfield entertained and Maj. Gen. Mrs. George Barnett and Congressman and Mrs. Henry D. Flood.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Logan had as their guests the Charge d'Affaires of Panama, Mr. Lefevre, and Mrs. Ramona Lefevre; Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Day, Col. Tozzi, of the Italian mission; Admiral Samuel McGowan, Mrs. Victor Kaufmann, Mrs. James Kenney, of Philadelphia, house guest of Mrs. Logan; Mrs. Philip Patchin, Mrs. Mailek A. Loring, of New York, mother of the hostess; Miss Marie Sima, Capt. Ames Brown, Ira Patchin, of New York, and Stephen F. Bourne, of Philadelphia.

Other notables present were Admiral Sir William Lowther Grant, who wiggled a message across the room to many of the guests. Mrs. Morris Evans, Mrs. Meta Evans, Mrs. John Ballentine Pitney, Mrs. William Haywood, Mrs. Francis Nash, Mrs. D. Buchanan Merry, Mrs. Coleman, Dr. and Mrs. Meade Moore, the Misses Tuttle, Mrs. Margaret Harding, the Misses Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jorissen, Georges Geoffroy, of the French high commission; Mrs. Roosevelt Payne, Mrs. R. E. Trum Hunt, Mrs. Frouke Smith, Mrs. William Bell Watkins, Mrs. F. B. Moran, the Misses Sims, Miss Alice Regua, Commander and Mrs. Clarence Nelson Rinkup, Miss Mary Graham, Mrs. Theodore Baldwin, Col. and Mrs. Davis Porter, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spear Hudson.

Dinners were given before the ball by Mrs. E. H. G. Slater, Mrs. Delos Blodgett, Mr. and Mrs. H. Campbell

Thomas, Major Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Grace F. Logan, Mrs. James McDonald, Countess Gizeyka, Commander C. T. Jewell, and others. Mrs. C. T. Jewell and others. Mrs. C. T. Jewell, in white—she might have been either a lady of the harem or an influenza patient—told fortunes during the evening.

Mrs. Marshall Receives

Mrs. Thomas Riley Marshall received yesterday afternoon between 3 and 6 o'clock for the first time in nearly two years—not in her own apartments in the Willard, but in a spacious suite on the second floor in the southeast corner of the building. She wore a becoming gown of black flowered silk in an orchid design, veiled in black chiffon, and wore a corsage bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. She had receiving with her and assisting at the tables, which were beautifully decorated with pink roses and feathery asparagus fern. Mr. Philander Knox, Mrs. Atlee Pomerene, Mrs. Miles Pomerene, Mrs. James A. Reed, Mrs. Wesley Jones, and Mrs. C. C. McChord.

The Vice President was present most of the afternoon, and so was Master Gordon Marshall, who contributed in no small measure to the entertainment of the guests. No cards were sent out, but the rooms were crowded during the hours of the reception. Society being about equally represented. Almost the last callers to arrive, after the receiving line had broken up and adjourned to the dining room, were Mrs. Carter Glass wife of the new Secretary of the Treasury, and Miss Augusta Glass.

Mrs. Charles S. Bromwell will entertain twenty guests tonight in honor of the Spanish Ambassador and Mme. Riano. Mrs. Bromwell will give another dinner on Tuesday evening January 21.

Mrs. Marshall Field will entertain at dinner tonight at her home in Sixteenth street.

Mme. Christian Hauge will be hostess at dinner tonight at her home in Massachusetts Avenue.
